SCARCITY OF SILVER.

The last weekly report of the Bank of France discloses that the demand for silver is rapidly exhausting the stocks carried by that institution, which is the chief holder of silver coin in Europe. The silver famine also is manifesting itself in commercial circles, where the jewelers say they cannot procure supplies of the white metal at anything like the current quotations. A letter from a leading Boston brokerage house discusses the question from a manufacturing standpoint as follows: "It may interest you to know that one of the leading silverware manufacturers in the east has recently paid $1.47 per ounce for silver, while the market in New York for actual delivery is above $1.40. As a matter of fact the market for silver today is that at which it is possible to obtain a supply. Silver-smiths and jewelers of Newark, N. J., and there are many of them, for the reason that Newark ranks third among the cities of the United States in the manufacture of jewelry, are seriously concerned about the steady and maintained rise in the price of silver. The majority agree that the recent silver quotations point to a still further rise in the price of silver that may prove of extreme embarrassment to the trade. Lately the price of silver has been steady around the highest quotations ever recorded in the history of the country. Manufacturers say that it is impossible to procure supplies at anything like the quoted price and that they are unable to find raw materials at any price."

CANADIAN EXCHANGE.

With a balance of trade amounting to $195,000,000 against them our northern cousins cannot complain that the rate of exchange should rise to 10 per cent on the dollar. The government at Ottawa is doing its best to restore the parity but has failed lamentably in bringing about any adjustment that would restore the value of the Canadian dollar. An analysis of the imports from the United States reveals a most unsatisfactory state of affairs, indicating that the balance of trade is due largely to the imports of luxuries which could be dispensed with were the Canadian actuated by a spirit of patriotism and intent on enforcing rigid economy. High priced automobiles figure freely in the list of commodities and it is seriously proposed placing an embargo on such imports. To do this would invite reprisals, for commerce between friendly nations does not recognize the right of one country to discriminate against another to such an extent. The reform must begin at home or through an increased customs duty. Some short-sighted statesmen proposed retaliating on the United States by restricting the export of print paper, a large percentage of which originates from the other side of the Canadian line. Such action would tend to aggravate the deficit which is militating against the value of Canadian money and lead to a higher rate of discount on settlements. A noble effort to equalize the disparity occurred last week when Canada shipped $40,000,000 in gold to New York with the object of reducing its obligations. This represents the entire gold production of Canada for six months and is a serious depletion of its final resources.

The mother country is making a staggering effort to stimulate exports through its colonies as evidenced by reports of the arrival of the steamer at an Atlantic port with $9,000,000 worth of wool and the further announcement that other vessels have been chartered to follow as soon as cargoes can be provided. France is looking for American capital to help rebuild its fallen industries with the plea that, unless the United States comes to its assistance, Germany will soon lead Europe in the magnitude of its exports and that in less than fifty years it will have rehabilitated its war machine to once more menace the peace of the world. A measure having this end in view is before congress and under the able guidance and fostering support of a republican majority, and the solution will be reached in short order.

REPUBLICANS TO THE RESCUE.

When the republican congress convened on May 19th it found awaiting it for action seven of the regular appropriation bills that the democrats had failed to complete before adjournment of the previous session on March 4th. Those measures were promptly enacted, with a saving to the country, under the estimates submitted by the executive departments, of $1,585,000,000 and of about $940,000,000 under the amounts carried in the corresponding democratic bills that failed of passage. Estimates are now before congress for the regular supply bills for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1921. In these the democratic departmental chiefs ask for a total appropriation of $4,865,410,031.62.

Of that huge total about $1,425,000,000 is for so-called permanent appropriations which cannot be avoided, including interest on public debt, and other obligations hitherto undertaken by the government. The balance of the estimates, $3,440,000,000 for "regular appropriations" represents an increase over the amounts actually appropriated in the same bills for the fiscal year of 1920 of over $404,000,000. In every case except two the departments have asked for increases over the amounts allotted them last year, varying from $1,400,000 in the diplomatic and consular bill to $300,000,000 in the sundry civil bill; this in spite of the fact that the country is one year further removed from the war. A table has been prepared giving in detail a comparison of the estimates for 1921, the appropriations for 1920 and the estimated revenues for 1921 which should receive the sober attention of every American citizen. The republican congress is making a valiant fight to cut down national expenses in every proper way. To win success in that struggle it must receive the support of the people.

The New York World howls that the sole aim of congress during the extra session was to "discredit Wilson." As if Mr. Wilson needed any assistance in that job!

The reason the Russian bolsheviks, having sunk Russia to depths of suffering hitherto unexperienced by any people, send political missionaries to the United States is presumably because misery loves company.

Professor Irving Fisher, of Yale, advocates a more elastic dollar. The democratic party is hunting around for an issue.

A political party which tries to straddle on an important issue takes chances on having the straddle become a split.

The worst enemy of labor unionism is the incipient autocrat who seeks to array organized labor against the public in a nation where the public finally rules.

Government by fear may flourish for a while, either in public or private affairs, but the time always comes when people decline to back up further.

BOY SINGS SELF OUT OF COURT

(By Associated Press)

DALLAS, Texas, Dec. 20.—Sitting huddled in a chair in juvenile court here, a diminutive yellow negro, 11 years old, recently sang himself from a charge of bicycle theft. There was nothing of apparent greatness about the lad unless it was his feet. Encased in a pair of worn-out men's shoes, it was difficult to tell how much shoe leather was superfluous.

"Judge, you ought to hear that boy sing," suggested a court officer when the case was called.

Judge R. B. Seay of criminal district court No. 1, presiding temporarily in juvenile court, said he "didn't mind."

Without a trace of embarrassment the negro boy closed his eyes, threw back his head and broke into the melodious croon of "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot." Court officers and spectators literally held their breath as the singer's voice rang through the court room.

"That boy has a ten-thousand dollar voice," Judge Seay declared. "He shall be educated and trained as a singer. I am personally going to see that he is placed where he can have the proper advantages. With that voice he will be a power among his race."

The boy, who says he does not know his own name, was placed under the care of the Dallas Negro Y. M. C. A. pending other arrangements.

FLIVVER BLOWS UP; OCCUPANTS SEE WORLD'S END

"All this talk about the world coming to an end is bunk," said Charles Keller, carpenter for the Verdi Lumber company, as he and William Woods, another employee of the same company, were rolling along the Virginia road about fifteen miles an hour in a "flivver" Wednesday afternoon.

"Bang," went something under the hood of the car just as Keller concluded his speech.

The hood was blown off and flames were shooting from all parts of the machine and everything but the wheels were practically destroyed.

The radiator of the car had been partly filled with kerosene as an antifreeze precaution and, fumes began coming off when the radiator got hot. The car was equipped with a spark intensifier and it is thought that this spark ignited the kerosene fumes, causing the explosion.
